The Seau Harbor Doesn't Want to Pay Taxes

The trustees of Seau's Seau Harbor, on Staten Island, have begun an action in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn to determine who has the right to tax the institution. The trustees have asked the court to tax the institution, and the question is whether the institution should be taxed at all. The action is under the direction of the trustees, who have been supported by the founder's widow, and therefore exempt from taxation. The matter came before Judge Bartlett, who issued a preliminary injunction and decision upon this was received.

Mysterious Disappearance of an Eloping Bridegroom.

Bethel, Feb. 26.—George Love of Marshfield, being opposed in his wooing of Anna Lane by her parents, on Tuesday induced the girl to elope with him. They went to Laurencetown, Pa., and were married. From the residence of the preacher who married them they went to the home of a friend, where they remained until late at night. They then went to a friend who lived in the village. He did not return, and after waiting for him until the next morning, his bride returned to her parents' home, but he had left them and his missing husband, nor can any trace of him be found.

TRIALS OF AN ACTRESS.

Albion, N.Y.—Jenny Keefarth, at present being tried for the murder of Anna Lane, told our reporter: "I have been troubled by the thought that I have been accused of a serious offense, and my nervous debility produced by severe nervous trouble, and I have been taking medicine, in combination with exercise, to help me get over it. I tried various prescriptions with little success, but I am now well again."

Mrs. Hattie Russell, witness for the defense, said she had been cured of the same trouble, and recommended the same treatment.

Dr. Wolfe and Deutscherger, and attorney for the defense, said they had been unable to find any method of cure for their patient.

At the trial, Dr. Deutscherger recommended the services of two doctors for the restoration of health and the removal of the nervous debility.
